

The Vintners Quality Alliance Act, 1999 regulates the use of terms on wine labels. The terms listed in the excerpt from Regulation 406 under the Act can be used to describe VQA certified wines only and are prohibited for any use on non-VQA wines or until such time as a wine has received VQA approval.

Section 6 of the VQA Act states that “a manufacturer shall not use the terms, descriptions and designations established by the wine authority without its approval.”

Ontario Regulation 406 lists the specific terms and conditions for their use. The regulations govern all use in association with a wine and apply to labels, containers, signage, and representation on tasting notes, website, advertising etc.

No person shall use the following terms, descriptions and designations unless the wine is approved and the conditions set out in the regulation are satisfied:
